

All we need from this department is a deep apology and hard work. The excuses and deflection of responsibility are falling of deaf ears. We have been left behind by the state, and many people's very lives are in jeopardy. These reforms needed to have happened years ago, and Kay Erickson inability to resolve any of the issues in a meaningful way means she needs to join the ranks of the unemployed and work her way through her own system.

I have never in my 29 years in this state been embarrassed to live here until now. The message you are sending is if you don't have four months savings, Oregon doesn't want you.
