

Dear Sirs,

I am a mother of two adult down syndrome children. Even though they're in their mid-twenties their mental understanding and capability is between a 5-year-old and a 7-year-old. They are pretty social but they are regimented with routine and with limited understanding of their future their present and their past. Generally they live in the present can't understand 10 minutes pre or 10 minutes after.

The possibility that they would be left on their own in a place they've never been with people they do not know while they are physically and emotionally under stress because of an illness, that is pure terror and you have created the nightmare. With today's society you would be the highest ranking bully on the planet.

do not under any circumstances rate pillage and torment another community of people because of money, or inexperience in this field.

Pass the new law so that this vulnerable community of special needs, emotional instability, emotionally vulnerable, and who are totally dependent on others' wisdom ethics and service.

Sincerely,

Gayla Sparks
