No plastic straws. Think about banning styrofoam meat trays and clamshell containers too

We need to change our habits and expectations, and often that means we need government to make us do it like kids need parents to help us do the right thing. Some businesses have started this trend, but others need the legal push. Please ban plastic straws. Let s ban single-use plastic bags too and find healthy alternatives to plastic and maybe even new healthy plastics all around.

Absolutely an important way to help save our sea creatures. The restaurant I work at, out in Cannon Beach, has already started that process. We don't serve drinks with straws. If a customer request one, we give them a paper straw. Cost more, but it's very important to us to do our part. We switched out to-go bags with more earth friendly bags and are shopping for non-plastic to-go forks, etc.

I would happily ban single use plastic straws. People will adjust and it will be one more way to help prevent garbage from harming our environment and it's living beings. Thank you.

Single use condiment packets and one use plastic bags are also a HUGE problem. So why not go the distance to save our oceans and the wildlife that depend upon this vital resource? We have yet to learn the consequences of the break down of microplastics and human consumption through the food chain..., and that truly SUCKS.

I'm really proud of Oregon for the many cities which have instituted the plastic bag ban. Let's be a leader in the nation and ban more plastics!! Plastic straws seems like the next logical choice. Please help us heal the planet---let's show the rest of the country how much we care about Mother Earth and future generations of people and animals. Please ban plastic straws!

Oceans may look infinite, but they're not. The massive areas filled with plastic in the oceans are growing rapidly, and will within the lifetimes of people alive now come to fill all of the earth's seas unless we stop treating them as an open sewer for all of our waste. Banning plastic straws will be an important first step addressing this threat.

Protecting the environment is my highest priority. I pick up trash along the roadside on my walking route to work, and plastics, including straws, are the largest category of litter, after cigarette butts.

We're smart enough to fix this. Compostable bamboo, paper, or other biodegradable source straws could easily replace plastic. Let's do this together!

Too many straws and too much plastic are drowning our marine life. We have to get this under control. For those who little fines need to be enforced. How about getting those able bodied folks on unemployment enjoyment to earn their checks and do something worthwhile for the environment and community.
