Dear Members of the Committee:

I'm writing to express my personal opposition to HB 3063, as a future mother. This legislation is simply unconstitutional.

Our bloated vaccine schedule includes Hepatitis B vaccine given at birth, even though Hepatitis B is only transmissible via sexual contact or sharing needles. According to Paul Thomas, MD (The Vaccine Friendly Plan) also has extremely high aluminum content that is unsafe for babies on a microgram per pound of body weight level. If I choose not to vaccinate my future children against Hepatitis B, and instead educate them on the importance of abstinence, safe sex and avoiding drugs, this bill would forbid my children to attend school. This is discriminatory and not based on rational public health logic. A kindergartener simply cannot give other kindergarteners Hepatitis B.

Similarly, the HPV vaccine is a vaccine against a sexually transmitted disease. Like the Hepatitis B vaccine, it contains extremely high levels of aluminum. Many adverse reactions and deaths have been reported in response to this injection. As such, I intend to raise my children to be safe and hygienic in their adult lives to avoid risk of developing HPV, instead of giving them the HPV vaccine. My children will pose no public health risk in school if they are not immunized against what I perceive to be a dangerous vaccine. Why, then, should they be forbidden from attending school in Oregon if this bill is passed?

Thank you very much for your consideration.

Sincerely,
Lisa Nichols
