

To whom it may concern,

To have drug dealer put on probation and not sentenced for selling drugs that ultimately kill a person is outrageous. This law would not only place a consequence on drug dealers and hold them accountable for their actions but it would also get them off the streets. As a school teacher I would like these young minds to understand what will happen if you make bad choices. You need to set examples for the future can learn from the past.

Sincerely,

Catherine Mack
