

To whomever it may concern:

I am currently a high school student in Oregon and have seen the effects of drugs on my peers. I have also noticed is the lack of remorse the dealers have towards the people who buy from them. Many of the dealers do not even use the drugs themselves; however, they have no problem profiting off the problems of others. Taylor's Law would add one of the first real deterrents focused on drug dealers. As a first time Oregon Voter this year, I urge you to pass this bill to help our families, our communities, and our beautiful state as we continually try to become a more perfect union.
