BACKGROUND:

When the Department of Human Services (DHS) or a law enforcement agency receive information about suspected child abuse, they are currently required to notify each other, in the county where the report was received. In addition, when DHS makes rules governing its notification process, it must include a rule that compels notification of certain reports within ten days of receipt, and it must balance available resources with the need to provide the information.

Senate Bill 804 requires DHS to notify the law enforcement agency in the county where the abuse allegedly occurred, rather than in the county where the report was received. The measure also changes the rule that requires certain notifications to law enforcement within ten days of receipt of a report of suspected abuse, to within five days. Finally, Senate Bill 804 removes the requirement that DHS perform in a balancing exercise prior to making rules that govern notifications.
