HB 2007 "Directs Environmental Quality Commission to adopt by rule diesel engine emission standards for medium-duty trucks and heavy-duty trucks."

Oregon's weak standards for diesel mean we are a dumping ground for dirty diesel trucks that don't comply with California's stronger rules. As well as the climate change impacts of diesel fuel, its emissions also contribute to asthma and other respiratory diseases and cardiovascular conditions.

I heard that old diesel trucks end up in Oregon from California due to our lax standards. Let's catch up!

Thank you for all you do.
