

As a former educator of twenty five years, I am deeply concerned with the way technology is mediating students' relationship to the classroom, one another and their own health. This bill pertains to just one aspect of technological development in schools that is vastly under researched and could influence children's mental and physical health.

Patricia M. Kasper