Dear Senators,

I am writing to encourage you to take strong action to label wireless devices with warnings so consumers will understand necessary safety precautions. Wireless devices emit radiofrequency radiation, associated with a large number of health problems including cancers, neurological, and immune system problems, in addition to learning, memory, autism, dementias, and ADD and ADHD. It is imperative that people using wireless devices are better informed so they may take proper actions.

Sincerely,

Susan Brinchman, Director
