RE: Support for House Bill 2562

I write this in support of House Bill 2562.

It is frankly shocking that there is only one, one-quarter FTE State Title IX Coordinator at the Oregon Department of Education overseeing Title IX enforcement and prevention of gender-based harassment and discrimination in all of our K-12 schools. This means that school districts are on their own when developing policies for dealing with these important, sensitive issues. Our K - 12 students are also on their own in trying to deal with them. When members of AAUW of OR attempted to deliver Title IX packages to schools, we often ran into schools where the Title IX Coordinator didn't even now who he or she was.

Title IX reaches a broad range of important matters, including sexual harassment and bullying, athletics, girls only classes, access to STEM and CTE programs and more. It touches not only girls but also boys, members of the LGBTQ and non-binary communities, and staff. Regardless of the breadth of the law, our state has yet to develop state-wide training programs or continuing education programs for school-site Title IX Coordinators. These school-site Title Coordinators also have no consistent vehicle for sharing resources or communicating with each other about the factual situations they are presented with or how to keep up with the latest best practices.

At the present time there are no sample policies about Title IX matters, or investigation toolkits (with forms for use by witnesses, writing reports, how to deal with police investigations, etc.), posters letting students and staff know about Title IX, or how schools might conduct a self-audit to determine if their students and staff really do know what gender-based discrimination means.

Three years ago, I volunteered to hand deliver information on the latest updates to the Title IX Coordinator at a local high school from the American Association of University Women. I tried for weeks to learn who the Title IX Coordinator was. When I contacted the person who was identified to me as the Title IX Coordinator, it turned out that the person was NOT the Coordinator. Finally, I located the Coordinator who turned out to be new to the area, the school and did not really know exactly what the position requirements were. Later, I was told the principal was the Title IX Coordinator. This confusion was very troubling since if a student needed to report a problem it would be difficult to find the Title IX Coordinator in a timely manner.

Our students understand the difference between adults or systems that tell them one thing but do another. Without significantly more attention being paid to authorize and actualize Title IX enforcement and compliance, and prevention of gender-based discrimination, our students will get the message — it's okay to harass, bully and take unfair advantage of others. This isn't the Oregonian way.

I urge you to support HB 2562. Please include my letter be included as an exhibit in support of the HB 2562. Thank you.

Respectfully,
