

Hello,

I am writing with concern about Senate bill 978. While this bill seems to make sense to you, it makes no sense in real world implementation. My real concern is this. Criminals do not care about your laws. You can ban all firearms and ammunition, criminals will still acquire them.

Heroin, meth, cocaine.... all banned. Yet they still end up in the hands of addicts and criminals.

The drug cartels will see this as a new money maker. Smuggling firearms into our state. Criminals will buy them and use them.

You cannot stop the tidal wave of illicit drugs coming into our state now. How will you stop guns?

Another law?

All you will have accomplished is to turn law abiding citizens into criminals themselves. And all of this when firearms are not even close to being a leading cause of death in this country. Especially in our state. How about banning the most deadly things first like cars or prescription drugs or swimming pools ect ect.

However, at the end of the day it has nothing to do with rights. Its about power. And it seems that politicians want more power than the people. Disturbing.

If you read this I appreciate your time.

Jeff Rhoads