

Matthew Sprague With all due respect, gun control primarily aimed at law abiding citizens has never proven to work and making laws that are so dauntingly long and confusing to law abiding citizens puts them in a position of breaking the law without knowing. Anytime the laws become so onerous that one needs a doctoral degree to fully understand them, then the law is worthless. Rather than handcuffing the good citizens of this State, you may want to consider spending more money and effort enforcing current laws and bringing criminals to justice.
