

How is it that restricting some of the safest people (CHL Holders) in the state will do anything to reduce violence? Simply stated, it won't. It will actually do the opposite.

We already have a system in place for background checks. There is no reason whatsoever to recreate another system. This seems like nothing more than a waste of time and resources and money.

Having to secure a firearm to transfer with a lock or case is entirely unnecessary as well. Weapons don't fire themselves in transport. This is all a ridiculous attempt to criminalize law abiding individuals and isn't going to make anyone safer at all.

Natasha E. Holmes