BACKGROUND:

According to the Department of Human Services (DHS), 11,645 children spent at least one day in foster care in Oregon in 2017. Of them, 6,938 were age six or older. Senate Bill 475 requires monthly visits with children age five or older in substitute care monthly to include updates on academic progress and for academic difficulties or barriers to be addressed. It also requires: exit interviews to obtain specific information within 30 days of a child's removal from placement; new placement in the same or a less restrictive school setting than the prior placement; and inclusion in classrooms with children that are not in substitute care.

Senate Bill 475 also requires youth age 16 or older in substitute care to have an opportunity to create a facilitated plan before they leave substitute care, to assist with transitioning to adulthood, that includes individuals they invite. The measure also requires youth to be provided with annual, written notice of housing and higher education options, mental health resources, and who has access to their medical and mental health records. Finally, before a school district develops an abbreviated day school program for a student in substitute care, Senate Bill 475 requires their case manager, foster parent, education surrogate and the Director of DHS to be involved.
