Effect in 2014 Election in Richmond, California

Taglines in 2014 Election in Richmond, California

Taglines on candidate ads foiled the massive attempt by Chevron, Inc. in 2014 to take over the government of Richmond, California.

Accidents (including huge explosions) at the Chevron refinery in Richmond released toxic gases. The Richmond City Council pushed for toxic controls and sued Chevron for damages resulting from a major fire in 2012 that sent thousands of Richmond residents to hospitals.

Taglines in 2014 Election in Richmond, California

Chevron tried to take over the city government by running candidates for mayor and all city council seats. Chevron spent over $3 million promoting its 4 candidates ($281 per voter), outspending the other candidates by a factor of 50.

But California law required that the ads identify their major funder: Chevron, Inc.

All Chevron's candidates lost overwhelmingly.

“Blurred source of donations reveals quirk in law” (2)

AP · by TOM JAMES · May 11, 2018

The cloaking of campaign funds reveals a loophole in Oregon law: Anonymous donations from individuals are illegal, but donations from anonymously-run corporations are not. A company’s name alone satisfies Oregon laws requiring candidates to list sources of donations, even if company documents don’t list the actual owners.

State licensing laws allow corporations to be set up without listing their actual owners or beneficiaries.

“Loophole makes it tough to follow money in Oregon campaigns”

- AP · by COOPER GREEN · September 11, 2017

But there’s a hole in the system: The public can only see single transactions on the state’s website and in public records. If a candidate passes contributions to another candidate, or to a re-election fund for fellow party members, the public can no longer see the money’s original donor.

These transactions are pass-throughs — allowed in unlimited quantity under Oregon law.

- AP · by COOPER GREEN · September 11, 2017

Statesman Journal analysis of campaign finance shows that candidates have utilized this system of pass-throughs more than 2,800 times in the last 3 election cycles alone, transferring $18.7 million between themselves.

This means that more than a quarter of all money involved in legislative campaigns has seen more than one lawmaker as it moves through the system.

When asked about the practice, legislative leaders declined to discuss it.

Anonymous campaign donations are banned in Oregon, but nearly half the money raised by a leading Republican gubernatorial candidate cannot be directly traced because it comes from two out-of-state corporations.

The two corporations have donated $125,000 of the $288,000 raised so far by candidate Greg Wooldridge.

Oregon is Diesel Dump

Oregon becomes dumping ground for California's old, polluting diesel big rigs (Oregonian 2015):

Oregon has become a dumping ground for California's old, polluting big diesel rigs.

About 350,000 trucks in California are being phased out because they fail to meet that state's stricter standards. Trucking companies have found willing buyers in Oregon, where environmental standards are looser.

Oregon is Diesel Dump 2

California's tighter rules, the country's toughest, are cleaning that state's air at the expense of air quality in Oregon and elsewhere. Newer trucks emit 90% less diesel soot, a known carcinogen. The U.S. EPA estimates diesel pollution prematurely kills 460 Oregonians annually.

Health problems such as lung cancer, heart attacks, pre-term and low-weight births, and asthma can be traced to exposure to the soot spewing from old diesel engines.

Oregon is Diesel Dump 3

The shift undercuts Oregon regulators' limited work to reduce the number of older, higher-polluting diesel engines, which pollute the air that Oregonians breathe.

Oregon hasn't done anything to prevent California's unwanted big rigs from coming in, despite plenty of warning. California adopted its rules in 2008.

Oregon isn't just becoming a dumping ground for old trucks. California is also requiring old off-road equipment – bulldozers, backhoes, steamrollers – to stop operating in the state, too. Those are also winding up in Oregon.

75% OF INDUSTRIAL POLLUTERS UNRESTRAINED BY OREGON

More than 75% of Oregon's largest industrial polluters are discharging waste without valid permits. Many permits are more than 20 years out of date. Several facilities have gone for decades without inspection.

Regulations for large-scale industrial polluters were defeated in the 2017 Oregon Legislature.

SOLID WASTE REGULATION REMOVED

The 2017 Oregon Legislature overwhelmingly voted to remove the regulatory authority for the state agency responsible for regulating the final cover and structural integrity of landfills-- immediately before one of the state's largest regional landfills is scheduled to close.

Business Energy Tax Credit Fraud

A 2016 audit of the state's Business Energy Tax Credits program found that as much as $340 million in tax credits (out of a total of $771 million) may have been fraudulently obtained. Despite this report, no action has been taken by the Oregon Legislature to recover these funds.
