

To Whom It Concerns,

I am writing once again to adamantly insist that SB723 be passed. I cannot bear the thought of living in a state where these extraordinarily cruel coyote killing contests take place. They serve no purpose (as already statistically proven) than to satisfy the enjoyment of a blood sport. I still envision these killers holding their dead coyotes by the tails while their children watch and learn it is okay to kill other living creatures for the fun of it. I also remember reading about the nursing coyote mother who was killed. No doubt her pups starved to death! Other states, such as New Mexico, have banned this terrible contest. I would be ashamed to live in Oregon if my state government did not do the same.

Sincerely,

Hillary Tiefer, PhD
