BACKGROUND:

The USS McGinty was a destroyer escort of the John C. Butler class commissioned in 1944, crewed by 14 officers and 201 enlisted personnel. She deployed on several major assignments during World War II and subsequently earned three battle stars for her service during the Korean War. She was decommissioned in 1959 and assigned to Reserve Escort Division 13 at the Swan Island Naval Reserve Center in Portland, manned by a Navy Reserve crew that included many Oregonians. Her mission was to train naval reservists to maintain operational and combat readiness. In 1961, she mobilized under presidential order and sailed to Hawaii as flagship for Escort Squadron 7 of the Seventh Fleet. During this deployment, the USS McGinty sailed to Vietnam to train personnel of the Republic of Vietnam in Saigon and on the Mekong River. She returned to Portland in 1962 and continued to train reservists until 1968, while also responding to natural disasters, including a severe flood in 1964 that affected much of Oregon and northern California.

Senate Concurrent Resolution 20 recognizes the service of the USS McGinty and her crew
