Establishes nine-member Oregon Human Rights Commission (Commission) within the Department of Human Services (DHS), appointed by Governor to safeguard the dignity and basic human rights of individuals with intellectual or developmental disabilities. Specifies composition of Commission and prohibits appointment for more than two consecutive three-year terms. Directs Commission to establish a statewide regional advisory committee system by rule to conduct informational hearings concerning violations of rights of individuals who have an intellectual or developmental disability. Replaces requirement that DHS promote dispute resolution, with Commission authority to investigate complaints.

ISSUES DISCUSSED:

- Independent avenue to resolve complaints for and receive input from those with developmental or intellectual disabilities
- Additional duties created by the Commission and current DHS workload
- Regional structure
- Scope of Commission's duties, client demographics

EFFECT OF AMENDMENT:

No amendment.

BACKGROUND:

The federal Developmental Disabilities Assistance and Bill of Rights Act of 2000 provides funding for the creation of councils at the state level to advocate for and protect individuals with disabilities. In matters of alleged rights violations, the Oregon Department of Human Services (DHS) is currently required to promote dispute resolution. In 2017, Senate Bill 834 directed DHS to develop a proposal for the creation of an independent human rights commission dedicated to the dignity and basic rights of individuals with intellectual and developmental disabilities. DHS convened a work group and collaborated on a proposal that included goals and purposes of a human rights commission distinct from existing work groups, systems, processes, and stakeholder groups, that resulted in Senate Bill 493.

Senate Bill 493 A establishes the Oregon Human Rights Commission (Commission) within DHS to safeguard the dignity and basic human rights of individuals who have an intellectual or developmental disability. The measure specifies membership of the Commission and directs it to establish a statewide regional advisory committee system to conduct informational hearings concerning violations of the rights of individuals who have an intellectual or developmental disability. The measure also requires the Commission to receive reports of rights violations and authorizes it to request and receive information relevant to complaints.
