BACKGROUND:

Oregon foster children range in age from birth to 21 years old. In 2018, 11,445 children in Oregon spent at least one day in foster care, including family foster care, professional treatment programs, psychiatric residential treatment, pre-adoptive placements, developmental disability placements, and independent living. Of these, 2,291 foster children were between the ages of 13 and 17. In 2011, the legislature passed House Bill 3471, which provided current and former foster children under the age of 25 with a tuition and fee waiver. A former foster child is defined as an individual who, for a total of six or more months while between 14 and 21 years old, was a ward of the court and in the legal custody of the Department of Human Services, or an Indian child subject to the Indian Child Welfare Act and under the jurisdiction of a tribal court, for out-of-home placement and not dismissed from care before reaching 16 years of age. The tuition waiver applies to community colleges, public universities, and the Oregon Health and Science University. To qualify, a current or former foster child must be under the age of 25 and must submit an application for federal financial aid. The recipient is eligible to receive waivers of up to the equivalent of four years of undergraduate education. The amount of the tuition waiver may be reduced by the amount of the student's other state or federal financial aid. During the 2016-2017 school year, 51 Oregon foster youth used the waiver. Of the 51, eight foster youth attended community colleges and 43 attended public universities. Current law requires tuition and fees to be waived for an eligible former foster child who "enrolls in" an institution of higher education, but the statute does not define enrollment. House Bill 2571 allows former foster children enrolled in one or more credit hours to receive a tuition waiver.
