BACKGROUND:

The Food, Pool and Lodging Health and Safety Programs within the Oregon Health Authority's Public Health Division work in partnership with local health departments, the recreation and tourist industry, and the public to reduce or eliminate illnesses and injury to patrons of food service establishments, public spas and pools, and tourist facilities in Oregon. The programs provide technical assistance, training, and education, and oversee the statewide licensing and inspection system. As permitted in statute, the Public Health Division generally delegates the licensing and inspection work to local public health authorities, which collect these fees to support their related program costs. The Public Health Division conducts inspections when a county transfers its public health authority status to the Oregon Health Authority.

The measure increases the fees for food, pool, and lodging entities regulated by the Oregon Health Authority and, through the delegation of responsibilities, by local public health authorities. These fees were last increased in 2003.
