The revenue impact of this measure is indeterminate for the following reasons:

The measure allows the Oregon Liquor Control Commission (OLCC) to create reports and analysis of data. OLCC can then market, sell, license the use of, or offer other forms of value-added access to the data and retain the revenue for purposes of covering the costs of producing the information and supporting or improving the agency's information systems infrastructure. For sales related to alcohol data and analysis, the resulting revenue is deposited into a suspense account and, after subtracting OLCC expenses, the remaining revenue is transferred to the Oregon Liquor Control Commission Account. For sales related to cannabis data and analysis, the resulting revenue is deposited into the OLCC Marijuana Control and Regulation Fund, which supports regulatory expenses of the agency related to cannabis. The measure also directs the OLCC to negotiate distilled spirits pricing directly with Indian tribes for sales of drinks at on-premises locations within tribal lands and airlines for sales to ticketed passengers aboard an aircraft.

The amounts of demand and resulting revenue of these products could be enough to cover costs, but it might not. Moreover, new revenue can be generated, but there is an equal chance that the result would be a revenue reduction.
