About Redistricting

Every 10-years following the release of U.S. Census data, Oregon's Legislature is tasked with redrawing congressional and state lines that are reflective of the state's population shifts to ensure each district has equal representation. In addition to Census data, the Legislature is supported by public testimony to ensure all Oregonians have a seat at the table and can make their voices heard.

About Maps Submitted

These maps were submitted by Rep. Andrea Salinas, co-chair of the House Committee on Redistricting, and committee members Rep. Khanh Pham and Rep. Wlinsvey Campos. These maps were drawn in alignment with statutory criteria.

The maps are not final and are for the public to review and provide input. Committee members will go back to the drawing board following 12 virtual hearings held September 8-13.

How to Get Involved

We are dedicated to an inclusive and accessible process where the public can have a seat at the table and make their voice heard. Already, we've held 10 public hearings. Now, the public is invited to sign up for one of our 12 virtual hearings held September 8-13. Here is how you can participate:

- Sign up: To sign up to testify September 8-13, visit www.oregonlegislature.gov/redistricting. We've also pulled together a helpful guide to help people sign up in English and Spanish: bit.ly/TestifySignUp.
- Submit your own map: The public also can draw and submit their own maps from now until September 7 at 5 p.m. These maps will also count as public testimony. To draw your own map, get started by visiting the Legislature's website: www.oregonlegislature.gov/redistricting.
