

Frankly, not happy with either partisan redistricting map. Districts should reflect commonality of interests, not gerrymandering efforts. What does someone in Astoria have in common with someone in St. John's, or someone in Madras have in common with someone in Gresham?

If I were drawing the districts, I'd make a coastal district for #6 stretching from Clatsop County to Curry County, and adjust the borders of the other 5 districts only as much as needed to balance population shares. I bet that person in Astoria has more in common with someone in Coos Bay or Brookings than in Portland!
