

I have not been able to open the actual maps, but have read the narratives.

My concern is that Jackson County not be split between districts. As the heart of the Rogue Valley and the provider of most services and resources here, it needs to be represented by a person who sees the area as a unified whole. We have very little in common with the longitudinally comparable part of the Coast and do not have easy access to it. As for the Coastal areas, while they do have strong common interests that might justify them being in one district, they obviously also have close connections to the parts of the state over the coastal mountains at the end of the main W-E roads that bring others to the coast, including sources of supplies not readily available there.

Thank you for your consideration.
