

My name is Lillian Moses, and I am from Junction City, Oregon.

Last month I celebrated my one-year-anniversary as Director of Housing Capital Construction at the University of Oregon. I'm greeting you today – also - as a U of O alum with 17 years of experience working alongside students, staff, faculty, and the community, most often wearing a hard hat on construction sites at the Eugene campus.

I am tremendously honored to be a nominee for the non-faculty staff seat on the University of Oregon's Board of Trustees.

On my journey through the commercial construction industry, I've found a niche as an active communicator, fostering open dialogue and continually seeking feedback to better serve the diverse stakeholders I've come to know at the U of O and beyond.

I see this board position as an opportunity for me to continue building – literally and figuratively - spaces which support student success by prioritizing equitable outcomes in learning, encouraging critical thinking, and working to create a sense of belonging with an eye on how the decisions we make today will impact our future in the decades to come.

Thank you for considering me for this position. I welcome your questions and I'm happy to share additional information about my background if you are interested.

Sincerely,
Lillian
