

Good morning

I am going to just let you know how I feel about the new online schooling. Do you think kids are getting the same opportunities by having 46 in one zoom class? Do you think that kids that can't go back to school should be in the same class as the ones that do?

I was under the impression that my kids would have the same opportunities as the hybrid kids would have. The same number of kids. When we were all online my child's classroom was 26 kids and still had a hard time managing with being online only now my child's classroom has 46 kids and even harder to manage. 2 days a week different kids for A days and B. So now the teacher will have to take the time to do the expectations for a zoom class every time at the new students that come in from A-day or B day taking up the time for online students that had been there the whole time not to be able to learn. When I emailed Mrs. Burman she told me that my child needed to take a break from the class because my child was feeling overwhelmed with all the kids which puts her behind and can't catch up. However, before all the changes my child was doing good with her class.

I feel my child is not getting equal opportunities with having to be online only. Katherine down
