BACKGROUND:

The agricultural workforce housing construction tax credit provides support for the construction, rehabilitation, and acquisition of housing for agricultural workers and their immediate families. The COVID-19 pandemic highlighted a housing shortage for agricultural workers, and in June 2020, Governor Kate Brown directed $10 million from the Coronavirus Relief Fund for agricultural workforce housing including an assistance program for hotel and alternative housing.

The tax credit may be taken for 50 percent of eligible costs for the agricultural workforce housing development and may be taken for the tax year in which the project is completed and in any of the nine years following the project's completion. The maximum allowable credit claimed by a taxpayer in a given year cannot exceed 20 percent of the total allowable credit. The tax credit program sunsets December 31, 2025.

Oregon Housing and Community Services anticipates that by bundling two years' worth of tax credits, the agency will better utilize other state and federal resources. The agency expects to monetize the credits in order to provide cash grants, which will allow individual farm owners with a lower tax burden to utilize the credits.

House Bill 2096 increases available tax credits for agricultural worker housing construction from $3.625 million per year to $24 million per biennium. It allows Oregon Housing and Community Services to enter into credit transactions, provided that the agency does not financially benefit from a transaction. The bill also allows any
