EFFECT OF AMENDMENT:

No amendment.

BACKGROUND:

The Oregon Board of Psychology (BOP) regulates the practice of psychology and is located within the Mental Health Regulatory Agency. It is responsible for adopting rules and a code of ethics; establishing standards of service, education and training, and qualifications to practice; investigating alleged violations; and imposing appropriate sanctions.

Psychologist associates are individuals under the direct supervision of a licensed psychologist, who may administer tests and assessments, or engage in vocational or educational planning, among other duties, but who do not have a doctoral degree. Currently, psychologist associates must apply to the BOP and pay a fee; possess a master's degree in psychology from an approved program; pass any required examinations; be deemed of good moral character; complete an approved internship or one year of other training; complete an additional three years of full-time work experience under the supervision of a licensed psychologist; and petition for BOP approval to perform duties independently.

House Bill 2117 repeals the BOP's regulatory authority over psychologist associates going forward, but retains examples of duties they may perform under supervision and the authority to approve associates' petitions to perform duties independently.
