WHAT THE MEASURE DOES:

Declares intent that ORS 182.545, which requires natural resource agencies to: consider the effects of an action on environmental justice issues when making determination; hold hearings at time and place that would be convenient for affected people; engage in public outreach activities in the affected communities; and create a citizen advocate position that applies to state agencies and policy decisions. Resolves that agencies: 1) are responsible to respond to health, environmental, economic and climate crises, and are accountable to build a just, equitable and resilient future; 2) develop guidance for the consideration of environmental justice in implementing their statutory and regulatory responsibilities, including consulting with the Environmental Justice Task Force; 3) make reparative investments in frontline communities and direct resources to policies and processes focused on building certain systems; 4) address environmental pollution; 5) make investments in watershed protection and water infrastructure; and 5) further resolve that a regenerative economy be based on community health protection, respect for traditional ecological knowledge systems and the full and fair participation of Black, Native American, Indigenous and People of Color communities, essential workers, youth, low-income people, and those who are most vulnerable in rural and urban communities.

ISSUES DISCUSSED:

- Equity goal alignment across branches of government
- Direction to consider people who have historically not been considered in public policy decisions
- Creation of environmental justice framework of principles for Oregon

EFFECT OF AMENDMENT:

No amendment.

BACKGROUND:

In 2007, the Legislative Assembly passed Senate Bill 420, which established the Environmental Justice Task Force. In addition, the 2007 Act directed the natural resource agencies to provide greater public participation and ensure that people affected by natural resource agency decisions had a voice in those decisions. Natural resource agencies were required to: consider the effects of an action on environmental justice issues when making a determination of whether and how to act; hold hearings at a time and place that would be convenient for affected people; engage in public outreach activities in the affected communities; and create a citizen advocate position.

Senate Concurrent Resolution 17 declares that it is the intent of the Legislative Assembly to apply to all state agencies the duties listed in ORS 182.545 to provide greater public participation and to ensure that all persons affected by decisions of the natural resource agencies have a voice in those decisions.
