BACKGROUND:

The Federal Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services recognize peer-delivered services as a tool for treating behavioral health disorders. Peer-delivered services often involve outreach, social support, problem-solving, help navigating community and medical services, and recovery promotion such as wellness skills. Such services are provided by individuals who are receiving mental health services or are in recovery from addiction disorders. The Oregon Health Authority (OHA) operates a training and certification program for peer support specialists.

House Bill 3111 directs Oregon Health Authority (OHA) to contract with at least four Recovery Community Organizations (RCOs) to operate four recovery centers, each in a different county.
