WHAT THE MEASURE DOES:

Creates a process for objecting to the presumption of inability to pay after the suspension of a child support order and requires that if presumption is found to be rebutted by court or administrative law judge, the support order be reinstated at 50 percent of the previously ordered support amount. Removes language providing that 180 consecutive days of incarceration or release from incarceration qualifies for a change in circumstances for child support modification. Makes reinstatement of support after an order has been suspended a substantial change of circumstances for purposes of child support modification proceedings. Modifies requirement that all child support orders be reviewed every three years. Requires review of suspended orders only after the support order has been reinstated.

ISSUES DISCUSSED:

- Rebuttable presumption that an incarcerated person is not able to pay child support
- Creates mechanism to rebut the presumption if circumstances change
- Removal of mandatory three-year review if no change in circumstances

EFFECT OF AMENDMENT:

No amendment.

BACKGROUND:

The Oregon Child Support Program is a partnership between the Oregon Department of Justice (DOJ) and 22 county District Attorney offices to provide services and support for Oregon's children. Some of the services provided include: establishing paternity, finding the noncustodial parent, and collecting and processing child support payments.

Senate Bill 821 creates a process for objecting to the presumption of inability to pay after the suspension of a child support order.
