

I would like to show my support for motorcycle lane sharing in Oregon. As a motorcycle commuter in Portland, I have quite a bit of experience sitting in traffic. By being on a motorcycle, I feel like I am doing my best to cut down on traffic in the city. I work for a motorcycle apparel manufacturer based here in Portland, and most of my office mates don't commute on their bike because of how unfortunate it is to sit in traffic, while trying not to get taken out by something bigger than us. With filtering being legalized (or decriminalized at every least), I know a lot more of them would ride and that would equal 10-15 less automobiles on the streets just in my office. I'm willing to guess I am not the only person in the state with this scenario. Please consider legalizing filtering in Oregon, as I feel it will be a win/win for everyone on the road.

Thank you.
