

So a boat over 4000 lbs can operate at any speed on the river however not if it's towing someone? To be fair, it should be written that any boat over 4000 cannot go fast enough to create a wake. I live on the river and by far the most significant damage my dock has sustained came from a large cruiser.