

It is shocking to me that you, as our elected officials, have allowed a bill like this to even get into the system. The very idea that guns in any form represent a health crisis stretches the imagination of even the most flexible mind; that is the equivalent of saying that cars or houses are health care issues. It is unfortunate that the people on this committee have become so obsessed with power and controlling other people that you have forgotten you are merely hired servants of us the people. As a hired servant you hold no real authority. So rather than trying to sneak in some radical anti gun legislation, why don't you redirect your focus to managing the areas we hired you to manage.
