

I support this measure as a way to protect victims of sexual assault/abuse and prevent schools from hiding information. For far too long institutions have tried to protect their reputations and sweep things under the rug instead of protecting their students. This measure will motivate adults to do the right thing by creating consequences if they fail to properly report abuse. The fact that some schools strongly object to this measure demonstrates how much it is needed. There should be no question that victims deserve to be protected.