

To whom it may concern,

ODE should NOT have oversight of private schools. This would allow ODE control/influence over curriculum. If parents wanted that, they'd chose public school. ODE is overly confident in being able to manage private schools when the public system is a mess. Not to mention, still largely out of school. Private schools have been in full attendance since the beginning of the year. Without issue. Why is it when a program is successful the state wants to step in?
