

People who don't show up to work don't get paid and Legislators who are failing to do the job they are elected to do should not be the exception to that. If they are not showing up to work, they obviously don't need a per diem for their travel, since they are not on the clock.