

To who it may concern. I grew up in rogue river and have seen the steady decline of our fish. Then I look at some of the progress that's been made with hatch boxes and brood stock programs it just makes sense. The fish are bigger healthier. And there are more of them. With the steady increase in population of humans and their natural predators such as seals. Something needs to be done about trying to preserve our fish. The way things are going now I'm not sure if my grandchildren will ever be able to catch these beautiful fish. I have been an avid fishing and hunting enthusiast for over 20 years. Thank you.
