

It is vital to the film industry that incentive monies be given to attract film projects to Oregon and support local film projects. Film has been shown to be an economic engine that can generate direct jobs, secondary and beyond spending. The industry creates tourism long after a popular show has finished shooting as just one example. Incentive monies can be shown to generate 100 times and more return on every dollar spent.