

The degradation of forests and large swaths of natural land in order to make way for an industry that is killing billions of sentient beings and contributes overwhelmingly to climate change is not sustainable, ethical or practical. In fact there are many other issues plaguing our country than a shortage of dairy products. We need to be investing in infrastructure for the future. The future is plant-based. We need to stop the exploitation of animals that is hurting them, ourselves, and our planet!