

Coyotes provide essential control of pest populations without toxic chemicals which accumulate and are proliferated in the other members of the ecosystem including in humans. They are inquisitive intelligent and sensitive beings and should never be cruelly hunted down, especially with poor control of prize-motivated individuals with guns and traps. The citizenry must never be permitted to raid dens. This is behavior we must prevent and penalize, not promote.