

Our society should be able to work together through mutual education, listening, and discourse to create conditions that are safe and just for all. These tools have no role in leadership.