

Our landlord is very daycare friendly. I think a big thing would be to change the fact that it is hard for a landlord to find insurance that would cover allowing a family childcare business in a rental property. We rent and had an insurance company come out and say they were cancelling the landlords insurance although we have a renters policy and a daycare policy with $3,000,000 coverage. The landlord had to find a new insurance company and I don't know if they told them we ran a childcare business. But now the landlord is going to be selling the home and I don't know if it is related to the insurance companies actions. But from what I am understanding most policies don't allow business out of the home in a rental. Just my thoughts. Thanks.