

I appose any new tax to the timber industry.

My thoughts are let the timber industry tell the forest industry how to better manager our forest treasure. Harvest as apposed to letting it burn. Create new jobs and thus create a new tax revenue. It's a win win.

However I do believe that clear cutting is not the answer either. I don't believe that harvest means destroy nor do I believe do nothing approach is a good idea either. There has to be a middle ground that any reasonable person can agree to.

Thank you,
