

Hi my name is Michelle, I work in this field because being a caregiver is what comes naturally to me. I take pride in being able to support the individuals I work with. Its very important to me to make sure they are getting their needs met and that we try to have fun doing it. As a mother with children on the Autism spectrum I know what I would want a caregiver to be to them, back up, safety net and fun. My husband was a CNA for a time, per him we do the job of 4 different personnel if our individuals were in a hospital or a nursing care facility. One of my coworkers is currently painting someone's nails before starting cooking with another then we will pass medications for every one. Especially during this time we are everything for our peeps to keep them safe, healthy and hopefully happy.

Personally most of my income goes to being the insurance provider for my my family. Many of my coworkers have second jobs and I know how lucky I am I don't have to have one at this moment but will probably need to soon. its not really possible to be the insurance provider and bread winner at the same time with a family.

Thanks for your time
