

Health care is, and should be recognized as, a fundamental human right. We cannot hope to achieve a fair, just, or ethical society without taking care of those who need it. Everyone needs health care at some point in their life, and no one knows when they will need it.

Oregon can lead the nation on this issue and show the rest of the country why every other developed country on earth provides health insurance to its citizens.