

I currently have healthcare benefits from the state as I am low-income. When I finally earn a higher-income position, I will have a period where I will be forced to pay for 100% of my healthcare out of pocket. This is because employers almost universally do not offer benefits to fresh employees. Why should my healthcare benefits be tied to my employer when they wont even offer it to every employee?