

I am surprised that this is not already a thing. I thought CPR certification was already a requirement for a police officer. I should be and I support making it a legislated requirement. I further support police officers learning a little bit more about airway management so that maybe they can help prevent themselves and others from choking someone to death.