

This bill is a solution looking for a problem. Its only function will be to further polarize the urban / rural divide in this state and open up the state to litigation over its Constitutionality. It's likely offenders would be otherwise law-abiding citizens who legally have firearms in their possession but for a confusing patchwork of restricted locations. I very much doubt that there is any evidence-based research such a law would provide any safety to anyone.